Course Description
Imagine being able to stimulate a positive response in others before you ever say a word. What we don’t say (our non-verbal communication) is much more persuasive than the actual words that we speak. Knowing how to send the signals and messages that you most want people to receive, while simultaneously reading their responses will give you a true competitive edge. This workshop will reveal insights into creating successful relationships, creating a positive and memorable impression, and maximizing the impact of your every encounter.
